

Dr. Peeradorn Kaewlai, Faculty of Architecture and Planning, Thammasat University, Advisor to TCDC

Ajarn Peeradorn is an expert in the field of urban development and research. He leads a team of researchers at Thammasat, which was the first group that focused on creative city research in Thailand. Ajarn Peeradorn has been actively working with the government and entrepreneurs on projects that increase a city's economic competitiveness. Recent projects include Bangkok Skyline, an elevated walkway connecting Ratchaprasong and Pratunam Districts, Development Guidelines for Creative Village in Rural Thailand, and Thailand's Design and Innovation Promotion Policy and Planning. In 2012, Ajarn Peeradorn was appointed as an advisor to the Thailand Creative and Design Center (TCDC) on the relocation and programming of the New TCDC. Since then, he and his team have been working with TCDC in exploring the potential of Charoen Krung District as a new creative precinct of Bangkok, and how the new TCDC can be a catalyst in urban revitalization.
